NURTURING CATHOLIC LEADERS

New Director Named at Duke Catholic Center

Fr. Michael T. Martin, OFM Conv., has been named the successor to Fr. Joseph G. Vetter as the Director of the Duke Catholic Center. The Most Reverend Michael F. Burbidge, Bishop of Raleigh, expressed appreciation to Fr. Joe for completing two 6-year terms at Duke and assigned him as Pastor of St. Therese Parish in Wrightsville Beach.

The landscape of the Catholic community that Fr. Mike inherits is in a much different place than when Fr. Joe took the position in 1998. In Fr. Joe's first years, he was sometimes alone in the ministry working out of the tiny office in the Duke Chapel basement with a five-figure budget, as were his predecessors. Fr. Joe recognized the need for additional infrastructure to support an appropriate ministry to the Duke Catholic population, which is nearly 25% of the student body.

Today, there are three full time ministers as well as 2 ½ other team members supporting the growing programs and activities of the bustling Catholic Center which now includes the 5,000 sq. ft. Falcone-Arena House on Buchanan Blvd. across from East Campus. Over 1,000 Duke students are engaged in a wide array of Catholic programming including Sunday and weekday masses, prayer groups, retreats and Tuesday Night Dinners at the FA House to name a few.

"I have met so many wonderful people, and Duke has been a stimulating environment in which to work" Fr. Joe said recently. "Since I must move, Wrightsville Beach is the best place to go. I am sad to leave Duke. Being here has been a great experience for me. I am grateful to the many generous and talented people who collaborated with me, students, parents and alumni, faculty and administration, and great support from Bishop Gossman and later Bishop Burbidge."

Fr. Mike moved from his hometown of Baltimore to join the Center after serving as Principal ('96-'01) and then President of his alma mater, Archbishop Curley High School. While Duke will be his first college level campus ministry position, Fr. Mike spent three years at Xavier University in Cincinnati as an adjunct professor. Ordained as a member of the Conventual Franciscan Friars in 1989 Fr. Mike received a Masters Degree from Boston College and a S.T.B. degree in Theology from the Pontifical Theological Faculty at St. Bonaventure-The Seraphicum in Rome, Italy.

"I am honored to be chosen as the Director and look forward to working with the students here at Duke," Fr. Mike said upon the announcement. "Fr. Joe has forged so many relationships on campus and built a tremendous structure of opportunity for these young men and women to explore their faith in what can be life changing years. These students are the future leaders in business, government and communities and the world is better off for the Catholic experience they will have during their years on campus."

The Duke Catholic Center has organized a celebration to honor Fr. Joe's twelve years of work. The entire community is invited to join together on Friday, November 12. Please see the invitation on the mailing panel of this newsletter, or online for details, and to RSVP.

A new year at Duke

The promise and potential of a new school year is a fragrance so thick you can taste it in the air! It is more than evident in the freshmen on campus for whom everything is new as well as in the last year grad students who can see the finish line on the horizon. Into this fresh world I find myself newly plopped, and I admit to a bit more of the freshman buzz given that I'm new, and my grad school days are long in the rear view mirror. And into this ever bright world, God speaks and calls us as always to respond to his grace regardless of our age or academic standing. We are always the students at the feet of the Master who desires to share His Wisdom with us, regardless of the new tricks we think this old dog can't possibly learn.

How to share God's love and message with the community that is Duke University is the challenge before me and the wonderful staff and volunteers committed to doing just that. The new year provides us with the opportunity to place the Gospel message in front of our students, faculty and staff and simply invite in the same way that Jesus himself called his disciples: "Come and follow me!" With the multiple challenges and opportunities before all of the students here at Duke, it is hard to imagine where Duke Catholic will fall on any given student's priority list. However, we believe that our programming is on target and the power of the Holy Spirit is compelling. These two gifts are what empower us to be boldly Catholic here at Duke and we are grateful for the support of so many within and outside the University community.

I was speaking with Nic and Shane the other day regarding music at our liturgies. Both of these students have full academic loads and are deeply committed to making our Sunday Masses and our Wednesday night Holy Hours musically enriching for all who come no matter what time it takes. Both Shane and Nic are examples to me of what young people are looking for in their faith and are a testament to what people are willing to give in order to make our faith life come alive. These are two of many students who have impressed me in my first days here at Duke. I believe there is more of that to come in the future, even when the newness of the school year wears out! May we all continue to respond to God's call and so be an example to others who may have placed their priorities elsewhere.

KAITLYN SANDERS

Peer Ministry Coordinator
kaitlyn.sanders@duke.edu

Welcome!

Duke Catholic Center Welcomes New Peer Ministry Coordinator

The Duke Catholic Center is pleased to welcome Kaitlyn Sanders as our ninth Peer Ministry Coordinator. Kaitlyn is looking forward to working closely with the current Student Directors, and is most excited about getting to know the incoming freshmen. "I was a freshman Resident Assistant for three years and helping new students transition and learn about Duke was very rewarding. I hope to help freshman find their niche at Duke early so they can have a successful four years."

Kaitlyn graduated from Duke in May 2010 with a degree in religion. While at Duke she was involved with the Duke Catholic Center, served as a resident assistant and peer advisor, and was a Pathways Lilly Scholar and summer intern. She is from Greensboro, N.C., and loves to dance, cook and travel, both domestically and internationally.

Kaitlyn got involved with Duke Catholic as soon as she got to Duke's campus. Her transition to Duke was aided by Courtney Olmsted, who was the Peer Ministry Coordinator at the time and from the same parish in Greensboro. "It was nice to have a familiar face around, someone who could help me connect to the other students. I hope to be able to do the same this year with the class of 2014." Kaitlyn's involvement with Duke Catholic continued to grow over her four years and she served in a number of different leadership positions. "I have worked with a lot of different programs that Duke Catholic has to offer, and have learned about how to plan successful events. I hope to share my experiences, including my successes and my failures, with current students who are organizing events in order to help them create the best programming possible."

Finally, Kaitlyn desires to grow closer to God this year with those around her. "I have to stop myself sometimes to remember why I am doing this job. It is because I love God and want to share His love with those around me. I want every student to leave Duke with a deeper understanding of his or her call to live a life of holiness and the beauty that the Catholic Church has to offer."

Students Teach Credited Course on Catholic Church

Nick Tsipis '11 and Conor Irwin '12 co-instructed a course on the Catholic Church giving a half course credit to 19 students in the first such offering in Spring Semester. The success of the course has led to its approval for both semesters of the 2010-2011 year. Each semester different students will lead the course.

"I grew immensely in my own faith through interacting with students of a variety of faith experiences as we journeyed together to understand both the difficult challenges and exciting opportunities the Church possesses as it seeks to interface with the modern world." Senior Soccer player Nick Tsipis said.

The course considered that from the beginning that the Church felt free enough to consider rising questions, albeit sometimes reluctantly (Acts of Apostles 6.1-2). The course offered an understanding of the church's way of proceeding in front of ethical dilemmas confronting Catholic leaders. The course called on the larger Duke community as guest lecturers on fields as diverse as psychology, literature, music, art and public policy. Guest lecture Dr. Sarah Schroth, Senior Curator of the Nasher Art Museum at Duke University, led the students on a tour of Catholic art at the Nasher. Dr. Schroth showed the class the "The Apostles" from a Romanesque Church of 12th Century Southern France. Guest lecturer Psychology Professor Bob Thompson showed that scientists don't have to live parallel lives: research on one track, and personal faith on the other track. He explained that research can nourish our faith. Guest lecturer Religion Professor Sam Miglarese challenged the class to continue the work of the Second Vatican Council by listening to all people locally. Music Professor Kerry McCarthy led the class through a tour of 'the what' of faith sung through the centuries. Sanford Public Policy Professor Alma Blount presented Pope Benedict's response to the recession in his work "Charity in Truth" calling us to forgo independence and live interdependently on the planet.

"I salute Nick and Conor for growing both in the knowledge of their Catholic faith as well as their teaching skills," Course Sponsor Fr. John McDonagh said.

The Fall Semester instructors Mike Cappetto '12, Casey Shannon '12 and Paul Harraka '11 have built on the Course's first offering with the addition of Men's Lacrosse Coach John Danowski to address the demands of virtuous leadership in personal relationships.

Annual Report of Giving

2009 - 2010

Thank you for the generous support during the 2009-2010 year to the Duke Catholic Center. Nearly 700 donors chose to designate their gift to further Catholic life for undergraduate and graduate students at Duke. This all-time high in donors was equally as impressive as the record of nearly $400,000 donated.

It is encouraging to see this increase in support as we build the ministry to meet the need of the 25% of Duke students who are Catholic. We thank you for your continued support.

Great care was taken in listing those who donated to the Duke Catholic Center from July 1, 2009 through June 30, 2010. If we have made an error or omission, please contact us so that we can correct our records.

Giving with purpose

Traveling south from the Lower East Side of Manhattan, John Haddad, M.D. '83 entered Duke like many other teenagers. His interests in the newly discovered freedom of college life were many and the hard decisions on which direction to take were few. In fact, he was the last person in his entire class to declare his major and did so only after someone from Student Affairs showed up at his dorm room and told him he had to declare a major on the spot.

The exploration of varied interests was the norm for John and after thirteen years of Catholic education, he did not involve himself in the Catholic Center as a Duke student. Instead, he was active in various local bands, a passion he still carries onto the stage with bands in the Houston area today.

"It was enlightening to me though to move to a relatively small southern city where for the first time it felt like I was a minority as a Catholic," John said. "I also had the opportunity to visit some local Baptist and Methodist church services and gain some perspective."

The son of a pathologist, John always had an aptitude for science and math and moved back to NYC to attend Mount Sinai School of Medicine. Today, Dr. Haddad is a partner in Houston Radiology Associated and is the Medical Director of Body MRI at The Methodist Hospital. He has a special interest in body and musculoskeletal MRI and participates in the care of Houston's professional athletes.

"I feel proud to be a Duke Alumnus and definitely want to give something back out of gratitude for what I have been given," John said recently. "Somewhere along the line I recall receiving some literature from the Catholic Center that struck a chord within me. Whatever it was, it gave me the impetus to direct a portion of my annual giving to the Center. The Catholic Center provides a sense of community and cultural identity for Catholic students, as well as an outlet for Catholic students to enhance the image and reputation of the Church through charitable acts in and around the Duke campus and city of Durham."

A black belt in Shotokan Karate, John and his wife, Iliana, have three children, John Paul (11), Raquel (9) and Freddy (6).

Duke Catholics Answer Call to Holiness

MIKE PORCELLUZZI, studied at Duke Law School and is beginning studies for the Archdiocese of Milano in his native country. At Duke, Mike worshipped at Weekday Masses and challenged his peers to be present to the questioning of young Catholics.

STEVE SAROKI, completed two years of studies at Fuqua towards a PhD in Finance. At Duke, Steve constantly called the Catholic Community to worship at Mass and Adoration. Steve begins studies for his home diocese of San Diego.

TIM AHN, completed the Masters in Theological Studies at Duke Divinity School in May. At Duke, Tim participated in daily Mass as well as called classmates to pray the rosary daily in the Crypt of Duke Chapel. He begins seminary for the Diocese of Raleigh at St Charles Borromeo in Philadelphia.
